PARENTS DAY A SUCCESS

A record 1,200 parents visited the University campus Sunday to participate in annual Parents' Day activities as well as milestone ceremonies of the University's College of Nursing.

Interviews with individual University faculty members and administrators to discuss progress of the students highlighted the Parents' Day program. A meeting of the Parents' Council of the University was conducted at 10:30 a.m. followed by luncheon for all parents at the Gym.

Pres. James H. Halsey noted the important role of the parents in the education of the students.

"Education is a three-way process with the student, faculty member and parent sharing equal responsibility," Dr. Halsey stated. "We are all interested in the progress of the student," he said, "and we can accomplish our goals by working together."

Dr. Alfred R. Wolff, director of Student Personnel and speaker at the luncheon observed that

"parents frequently expect too much from the college."

"Some parents want the college to do things for their sons or daughters which are mainly the responsibility of the student and sometimes of the parent," he said.

"The University must provide a good environment for study, good teaching, worthwhile classes, a good counseling service and to some extent a good social life," he observed, "but the ultimate for a student's success rests with the student."

He urged the parents to take an active interest in the progress of their children, tempered with the realization that they are young people who need to develop their own skills to solve problems. This is a part of the educational process, he said, which will help them to make a better personal adjustment to the world around them.

Milestone ceremonies of the College of Nursing were attended by a capacity audience at Trustees Hall at 3 p.m. There were 96 basic nursing students, representing the largest class in the history of the college, honored at the milestone program.

Herbert L. Cohen, local attorney and member of the University's Board of Trustees was guest speaker.

Mr. Cohen emphasized the importance of a liberal education for students entering the nursing profession, noting that doctors and nurses had a "responsibility of understanding mankind" in this fast-moving scientific age.

The University's A Cappella choir offered its first performance of the current academic year at the ceremonies under the direction of W. Earl Sauerwein.

A reception for parents of students residing in campus dormitories in the respective dormitories and at Alumni Hall climaxed the day-long program.

STUDENT TEACHING

Students interested in teaching this spring can see Prof. Charles J. Salek, coordinator of Student Teaching, in the College of Education 126 Park Ave., before Friday, Nov. 18. Failure to do so may jeopardize the candidate's opportunity to teach this coming semester, says Professor Salek.

Freshman Elections Held Today

Freshmen elections for Student Council representatives will be held today and tomorrow. The candidate receiving the most votes will be elected president, the one with the next highest amount of votes, vice-president, and so on for secretary and treasurer, announced Frank Mizak, Student Council President.

Those running are: Richard Hampson, majoring in biology; Susanne Horner, majoring in dental hygiene; Michael Marsak, majoring in business administration; Roseann Musicaro, majoring in secretarial studies.

Also: Herbert Rippe, majoring in history; Elaine Rubin, majoring in psychology; Lucrezia Senatore, majoring in physical education; Pamela Straub, majoring in secretarial studies; and Phyllis Thompson, majoring in elementary education.

Students working on the election campaign are: Daniel Brewster, Frank Mizak, Ronald Wender, Pat Dasko and Daniel Ianello.

Convocation To Honor Who's Who Selections

The Student Council will present a convocation on Nov. 30, at 1 p.m. in Trustees Lecture Hall, at which the 13 Council choices for "Who's Who in American Colleges" will be introduced to the student body.

Commenting on this, Phil Organ, vice-president of Student Council said that the convocation will mark a beginning in which the University is giving more responsibility to the students through its Student Council. "We have always had a Council here at the University, but to many, the function of this organization never seemed to hold the esteem it is now experiencing," stated Organ.

Organ added that the fact that only 13 out of 35 applications for "Who's Who" were accepted tends to show that the University is experiencing some form of close selection in its choices of representatives.

Bermuda's Talbot Brothers To Appear at Gym Sunday

The Talbot Brothers, a native calypso band from Bermuda will perform in the Gym Sunday afternoon, Nov. 20, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The six-piece band is being sponsored by the Alumni Hall Board of Directors and there will be no admission charge.

The group is now on a three month tour of the United States. They have played to overflow crowds at Yale University, Princeton University and many large hotels and clubs.

The Talbots consist of five brothers and one cousin: Archie, the emcee; Austin, who strums the guitar; Bryan plays the "tipple"; Ross, the electric guitar; Mandy, the accordion; and Roy, the "dog-house," which is a homemade instrument constructed out of an old packing case and an ordinary fishing line.

The group has had guest appearances on the Ed Sullivan Show, "Home" show and they have recorded the theme for the motion picture, "Bermuda Affair."

Dr. Jaeger Speaks To Cancer Group

Dr. Marie Jaeger, director of the Weylister Secretarial School, was a featured speaker at the regional meeting for cancer volunteers Nov. 15 in New Britain.

Dr. Jaeger outlined ways for gaining effective results with cancer education planning, in formulating cancer-control programs locally.

Represented at the meeting were about 100 volunteers from the New Britain, Waterbury, Hartford, Torrington, and Manchester branches of the Connecticut division, American Cancer Society. It is one of three statewide sessions aimed at reaching volunteers with pointers on improving local cancer activities.

Dr. Jaeger is chairman of the education committee for the Connecticut division, and has served with that group for five years.

Former Scribe Cutie Gets Call From Draft

Doris Kratochvil, former Scribe campus cutie of the week, received a letter recently from the U.S. Navy saying that she will soon be drafted.

Miss Kratochvil, a freshman pre-med major, said that this was obviously a case of mistaken identity, since the letter was addressed to Mr. Doris Kratochvil.

Convincing Students Goal of Communists

by Leonard Barlow

The student mind is a prime target for Communism say a number of educators who point to evidence that one of Communism's chief goals is infiltration of college campuses.

Communism seeks out the naive, the angry and the idealists, states Prof. George Bottosani, of the University engineering department, who adds that the college campus is an ideal place to find those who fit into these categories. The student is in a period of transition, and as such is likely to be very impressionable and more than normally susceptible to new ideas, especially those involving non-conformity, Bottosani maintains.

Prof. Bottosani, once a refuge from Communism, believes that the Communists are not trying to recruit students as active members of the party, but rather to provoke them into creating a climate in which totalitarianism can more easily flourish. The party leaders are not concerned with the size of their memberships and, although European students have been known to be active party members, they are few, and their purpose is only to approach their fellow students with the doctrines of Communism.

Prof. Bottosani relates that Communism does not now advocate an attempt at overthrowing the democratic system, but rather confines itself to infiltration. Since college campuses represent the educated mind, and therefore the next generation of leaders, they are targets for Communist approaches, he said. He reminds that the ideological approach, stressing peace, social justice and world harmony, is that generally used to attract students.

Prof. Bottosani stresses that the real leaders of the Communist party - the ones who are the driving force behind it - are generally undercover, with all surface activities headed by what he terms "push-button men," who merely carry out instructions.

Dr. Joseph S. Roucek, head of the University sociology department, believes that the problem exists constantly and is no greater now than it has been in the past. He also stressed the Communist technique of infiltrating ideas while seemingly engaged in other activities. For this reason, Dr. Roucek feels that no Communist organizations of any kind should be tolerated on college campuses, because, regardless of stated goals, their real purpose is the spreading of propaganda.

Recent evidence points to Communist concentration on students. Jack Lotto, reporter for the Houston Chronicle, reports on a new Communist party publication "New Horizons for Youth," aimed directly at the student. Lotto claims that the paper, under the slogan, "conceived and written by youth for youth," carries concealed Communism in all its messages. Lotto believes that the paper is destined for all possible college campuses.

As further evidence of Communism in "New Horizons," he points out that the editor is also the national youth director of the Communist party in this country, that one of the higher staff members is director of the Marxist organization "Advance," and that the shop which prints the paper also published the "Worker," official organ of the Communist party.

A former Communist writer also takes the view that students are the prime target for Communism. Douglas Hyde, formerly of the editorial staff of the Communist organ, "The London Daily Worker," cites action where students of other countries have, in the past, been instrumental in bringing about desired situations for the Communists. He points to the overthrow of the Sygman Rhee government in Korea, the Kishi government in Japan, and to many of the Cuba incidents as well as the incident in which rioting Japanese students kept President Eisenhower from entering Japan.

Dr. Harry Overstreet, author of a recent best-selling book about Communism, has recently been lecturing on college campuses. He also holds the opinion

Wender Appeals For Freshman Vote

To the Editor:

Many students are constantly complaining about the lack of freshman activities on campus and are discouraged by a lack of interest and spirit in campus activities. I think this can be remedied by a sincere interest in considering the freshmen candidates in the coming Student Council election.

The representatives who are running are interested in the welfare and benefit of the students. It is up to the freshmen voting populace to place the most qualified candidate in this important Student Council position.

Student Debator Wants SC Support

To the Editor:

For the first time in many years our Debating Society was refused its regular allocation from the Student Council's funds. The apparent reason for this refusal is a recent modification in the constitution, barring any organization participating in intercollegiate competition from the benefits of student-body funds.

The logic behind this constitutional amendment is questionable. It is probable that our distinguished legislators had in mind the financial aspect and were hoping to reduce in this manner the Student Council's expenditures. Since the only organization affected by the amendment was the Debating Society, whose expenses are minute - particularly in comparison with the Student Council budget - it is not clear what savings could thus result. If economy is our goal, certainly there are many other areas where significant savings might be incurred if the Council were willing to eliminate waste and impose tighter controls over expenditure.

It is also possible that the Council's Constitution Committee has decided that, as a matter of principle, the student body should be responsible for the maintenance of our intercollegiate teams. This line of reasoning is most annoying, and, I believe, a unique one among Eastern colleges. In their competitions with other colleges, our teams represent us, the student body, and not the administration of the that Communists attack the mind - not so much to activate people, but to provoke them into the Communists way of thinking. Overstreet calls Communism an assault on the mind, and terms party members caricatures of human beings.

In a recent speech, Dr. Overstreet emphasized that the Communist system relies on the removal of the individual's sense of privacy. He noted that, under Communism, there are no sense of values, except those relating to the state, and all individual freedom and private property must be eliminated. Under Communism, there is no morality above loyalty to the state, said Dr. Overstreet, who concluded, "Khrushchev wants to make the world over in order to take it over."

At Wayne State University, in Indiana, a controversy over Communists recently raged. A ten year ban on Communist speakers on campus was lifted by the administration. In a speech at the college, senatorial candidate, Alvin Bentley, stated that Communists do not deserve freedom of speech in this country. Said Bentley, "Since we would not be granted freedom of speech in Russia, why should they have it here?"

Soon afterwards, a petition with 25,000 names on it was presented to the school asking for a special session of the Board of Governors to replace the ban.

Congressional candidate, Robert Blackwell, in a speech at the university, took the opposing view and stated that all should be allowed freedom of speech, even Communists.

Commenting on this controversy, Dr. Roucek reiterated that he did not feel Communist speakers deserve a voice on campus since it must be assumed that they are only interested in spreading propaganda.

Several colleges report their students are receiving Communist literature through the mails. The literature is mailed from countries like Venezuela in order to avoid censorship. Among that received have been several publicity folders for Communist write-in candidates for president of the United States.

Dr. Buell Gallagher, president of City College in New York, recently charged that the "Observation Post," one of six campus newspapers, and its editor, Peter Steinberg, were Marxist oriented and sympathetic to Communism. In a reply, Steinberg denied the charges and said that he felt no one ideology could solve all the world's problems.

In regard to the future of Communism on campus, Prof. Botosani stated that infiltrating campuses is only the first step. He warns that Communism will not make the mistakes of Nazism, but will gradually try and build up a Communist climate within the intellectual environment. If the first step, the ideological step is successful, he feels, more precise measures will be taken in the future.

UI Movie Representative Talks to Mass Media Class

Ralph Moyer, field representative from Universal International Pictures, addressed a mass communications class recently and explained the promotion and exhibition part of the film industry.

Moyer, in his lecture, used the new movie "Midnight Lace," which he is promoting in the Bridgeport area, as a case example.

He spoke about special stunts used for effective promotion of the picture. For example he has a local hairdresser selling a "Midnight Lace" hairdo. He also has a mystery voice contest on station WKNB. Voices of UI stars will be broadcast and those who identify them will receive free tickets.

One stunt which was very successful in drawing large crowds in Hartford to see "Midnight Lace" was the use of printed "lucky number" dollars distributed to restaurants, bars, and hotels. Four winning numbers were posted in the box office of the theatre and 99 per cent of those that came to see if they had a lucky number bought tickets, stated Moyer. Word of mouth made the dailies a success he added.

Moyer cited the problem of film promotion since the growth of television.

"Drumbeating, as we say in the business", stated Moyer, "has to make the average person get out of his easy chair, put down his can of beer and go out to the movies."

To arouse interest field promoters use the daily papers, radio promotions, posters, gimmicks and stunts.

Moyer stated that if people can get something for nothing, through a puzzle or a maze, they will read the ad.

physical plant of the University. It is clearly our responsibility to see that our representatives get the support they need - and they need more than a pat on the back.

It does not at all follow that granting funds to the Debating Society will make it impossible for the Council to refuse allocations to potential organizations, such as a Chess Club or even a Pinochle Club. Since 1947 the student body has managed to support the Debating Society without getting involved in short-lived, unimportant enterprises. Surely our distinguished legislators should be able to devise constitutional means for testing the serenity and determination of newly established organizations requesting funds; they might, for example, require such bodies to sustain their activities on campus for a prescribed period before becoming eligible for intercollegiate support.

The Debating Society is one of our oldest organizations; it has represented us in the past with considerable degree of success against worthy opponents and has thus proven itself to be an asset to the student body of this University. The position of the Student Council in refusing the society funds is unsound. The Council should either make forthwith a better attempt to justify its action or else repel the questionable amendment and reallocate the society the funds it deserves.

Lack of Interest Ended Fencing

Lack of student interest and support was the downfall of the fencing team, states Prof. William DeSiero, of the political science department and one time coach of the team.

He noted that fencing is a sport which arouses curiosity on campus, but which can't seem to attract sustained interest.

Prof. DeSiero, a member of the varsity fencing team at Notre Dame during his undergraduate days, started a club in 1953 at the University. Many people seemed to be interested in the sport, he said. He had 15 students in the club that year who unofficially competed against other schools.

In 1954 he coached a varsity team that "didn't win too many matches, but had a lot of fun". He tried to organize a team the following year, but had only seven applicants where nine were needed. In 1956 there were fewer men interested, so the project was dropped completely, he said.

After several girls also voiced an interest in fencing, Prof. De-Siero began a female team. This also proved unsuccessful.

What the "amateur Errol Flynns" don't seem to realize is that fencing is a science which takes a long time to master. Considerable learning is necessary before a blade can even be handled, and the hard work seems to cause enthusiasm to die. With its death come the many excuses as to why it is impossible to be at practice, he noted.

Prof. DeSiero stated he is "ready, willing and able at any time to re-activate fencing on this campus for men and/or women." He said, "the equipment is available, and no one at the University is against it. All that is necessary is interest—not curiosity, but it little lasting interest."

WTIC Revolutionizes Weather Transmitting

A new approach to transmitting weather was started by station WTIC-FM of Hartford, recently.

The new style is concerned with the up to the minute broadcasting of weather from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday by WTIC. This new service is an endeavor of the U.S. Weather Bureau, The Travelers Weather Service and The Travelers Broadcasting Service Corporation.

In discussing the significance of the experiment, Dr. Thomas F. Malone, director of research for the Travelers said, "This could lead to a system of broadcasting weather information continuously throughout the day on a multiplex channel".

Making this system of forecasting possible is a network of Connecticut and Western Massachusetts weather observation stations now working in cooperation with the U.S. Weather Bureau and the Travelers Weather Service.

Special equipment has been installed for the transmission. The accuracy of the forecasts has been improved through the use of new analysis and forecasting techniques.

Last week informal pledge activities began which serve generally to acquaint the pledges with what is to be expected of them during pledge week. Informal pledging also provides an opportunity for pledges to become more familiar with brothers or sisters as the case may be.

Informal pledging, moreover, helps to bring these prospective brothers and sisters a step further along the path of brotherhood and sisterhood and, finally, it prepares each of them to initiate the final stride along the path.

The final stride is, of course, formal pledging which began this week and will continue through this Sunday at which time the new brothers and sisters will be formally initiated. The formal pledge period has long been considered a week characterized by the uniforms worn by pledges and the seemingly foolish humiliating tasks that they are asked to perform at their own expense.

This belief is far apart from the true meaning of the formal pledge activities, for pledging is characterized by traditional uniforms and tasks which are by no means, entirely funny and unmeaningful, but which are serious and symbolic of concepts which constitute brotherhood or sisterhood. Good luck to all those who are about to enter any of the worthy fraternities or sororities.

The girls of the black and green have collected quite a team of pledges. The pledges donned in top hats include Judi Bradt, Nancy Vandergrift, Carole Greenberg, Anne Werba, Dana Watkins, Kay Gattine, Sandy Case, Vicki Beyboini, Ginger Pagano, Jo Ann Lipton, Doena Schwartzberg, Judy Rabinor, Di-

Debating Club Begins Competition

The University Debating Society faces its first debate of the season on Saturday at the New Britain State Teachers College Tournament.

Mark Trager a senior majoring in Graphic Arts and Omri Serlin, a senior majoring in engineering are speaking for the affirmative and Jon Pennerland a sophomore majoring in English and Don Kaiser, a senior majoring in sociology will speak for the negative.

The topic under debate is; Resolved: That the United States should adopt a program of compulsory health insurance for all its citizens.

Prof. William Banks of the English department advises the debating team. He will accompany them and take part in the coming tournament as a judge.

University debaters recently cancelled an engagement at Brown University because of the sudden illness of one of the members.

Record Alumni Turnout For Homecoming Weekend

The University Homecoming Weekend saw a record number of alumni return to the campus for their annual reunion, stated Frank Mizak, Student Council president.

An estimated 200 alumni congregated on campus to participate in the social activities, which included dances, parties, rallies, and a parade, Mizak said. While this figure does not approach the number of graduates, it was, the greatest turnout to date," he stated.

Mizak says that many of the alumni who returned were recent graduates, but that there was also a good representation of the older alumni.

William Kennedy, director of Alumni Relations, said that this year only the fraternities and sororities sent out special invitations to their graduated members. It will be the custom in future years for the Alumni Hall Board of Directors to work together with the Student Council to formally invite all graduates to the Homecoming Weekend.

Nurse Smith Explains Student Health Fee

Mrs. Sylvia Smith, University nurse, reports that every dormitory student pays $15 a semester for the use of an infirmary bed and patient service for four days. The fee doesn't cover prescriptions and medication and is aside from aspirin given in the clinic without charge.

The University Health Center is intended to supplement the care of private physicians by offering first aid and treatment of minor illness occurring while the student is on campus, Mrs. Smith said. If necessary, hospital admissions are arranged for surgical and other emergency conditions, she added.

Mrs. Smith also noted that commuting students do not pay the fee, but may secure the use of the clinic on a cost per day basis.

What would YOU do as an engineer at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft?

Regardless of your specialty, you would work in a favorable engineering atmosphere.

Back in 1925, when Pratt & Whitney Aircraft was designing and developing the first of its family of history-making powerplants, an attitude was born—a recognition that engineering excellence was the key to success.

That attitude, that recognition of the prime importance of technical superiority is still predominant at P&WA today.

The field, of course, is broader now, the challenge greater. No longer are the company's requirements confined to graduates with degrees in mechanical and aeronautical engineering. Pratt & Whitney Aircraft today is concerned with the development of all forms of flight propulsion systems for the aerospace medium—air breathing, rocket, nuclear and other advanced types. Some are entirely new in concept. To carry out analytical, design, experimental or materials engineering assignments, men with degrees in mechanical, aeronautical, electrical, chemical and nuclear engineering are needed, along with those holding degrees in physics, chemistry and metallurgy.

Specifically, what would you do?—your own engineering talent provides the best answer. And Pratt & Whitney Aircraft provides the atmosphere in which that talent can flourish.

Development testing of liquid hydrogen-fueled rockets is carried out in specially built test stands like this at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's Florida Research and Development Center. Every phase of an experimental engine test may be controlled by engineers from a remote blockhouse (inset), with closed-circuit television providing a means for visual observation.

At P&WA's Connecticut Aircraft Nuclear Engine Laboratory (CANEL) many technical talents are focused on the development of nuclear propulsion systems for future air and space vehicles. With this live mock-up of a reactor, nuclear scientists and engineers can determine critical mass, material reactivity coefficients, control effectiveness and other reactor parameters.

Representative of electronic aids functioning for P&WA engineers is this on-site data recording center which can provide automatically recorded and computed data simultaneously with the testing of an engine. This equipment is capable of recording 1,200 different values per second.

Studies of solar energy collection and liquid and vapor power cycles typify P&WA's research in advanced space auxiliary power systems. Analytical and Experimental Engineers work together in such programs to establish and test basic concepts.

Revisions Planned In Teaching Program

The College of Education is currently undertaking a revision of the program for potential teachers.

The new plan includes alterations of the type and number of courses an education student needs for certification, and is expected to add about eight or nine hours to each area of teaching specialization.

Dr. Carol Palmer, chairman of the program, stated that students enrolled under previous catalogue requirements will not be affected by the changes. The proposal is scheduled to go into effect next fall.

The school superintendents of Bridgeport, Fairfield and Milford will act as consultants for the program.

Freshmen Gridders Edged In Close Hofstra Contest

by Ed De Tour

This past Saturday, the UB freshman journeyed to Hempstead Long Island for their last game of the season and bowed to the Hofstra Frosh, 16-14.

Hofstra drew first blood in the opening minutes by scoring in three plays and then making good for the conversion with a plunge.

The UB frosh bounced right back and made it 8-6 on a six yard plunge by Jim McKinnery. The try for the conversion failed.

The yearlings kept rolling in the second quarter and took over the lead mainly on the strength of the running of Jim Kassnic. He swept the end for the touch down and also crashed over for the two point conversion.

Hofstra finished out the scoring in the first half as they scored another touchdown and extra point to make the score at halftime 16-14.

The second half was superb, defensively. Both teams rose to the occasion time and time again to stop T.D. drives. The frosh defensive team was led by Charlie Smith, Paul Bruno, Jim Heruska and Jim Merritt.

The frosh looked as if they might get the decisive T.D. in the third quarter. A 50 yard pass play was called back because of an ineligible receiver downfield. This was the last scoring opportunity for the UB yearlings and the score remained 16-14.

Coach William Barstow and Frank Costa, line coach, should be congratulated for a fine job. These two men were called into this situation because the Freshman coach at the beginning of the season quit after one week of practice. The squad was unorganized and must also be commended for sticking out the entire season under these circumstances.

MOVIE

The next scheduled movie of the Foreign Film Festival, "Gate of Hell", will be postponed until Jan. 13 due to the Thanksgiving vacation, announced festival chairman Dr. Justice M. Van der Kroef.

BOOTERS EDGE COAST GUARD 2-1

by Jim Hill
The Purple Knights traveled to New London last Wednesday and defeated the U.S. Coast Guard Academy 2-1. It was the Knights' ninth and final game of the regular season, the big win which helped them finish out with a very commendable 7-1-1 record. The slippery field and cold wind blowing off the water kept the pace of both teams in check through most of the first period, but the second 22 saw the development of what turned out to be a great game. UB almost scored twice on shots by Hans Zucker and Pat Quigley, but the Cadet goalie just managed to push Zucker's boot away, and Quigley's careened off the left side bar of the cage.

The Knights got things underway in the third quarter after taking a slight offensive edge in the last part of period two. Co-captain Zucker managed to push the ball just to the left of the pack fighting for possession around the goal. John Majesko took the pass, caught the goalie moving slightly to the right with the ball, and slammed it by him into the left corner of the net.

Cadet captain Dave Hastings provided the retaliation eight minutes later when he took a pass from his center half, Artie Katz, found himself almost alone, and put the shot in, Bob Dikranian, and Pat Quigley threatened a couple of times for the Knights, but one shot bounced off of someone's head and the other was wide.

Up until the last three minutes of play it looked like the game would go into overtime. Pat Quigley led the Knights' offense in several attempts but the ball wouldn't go in. Finally, with a little less than three minutes left, John Majesko took a Quigley pass and hit the twines with a shot into the left corner.

Both teams threatened to score again, but the score remained 2-1, and the Purple Knights walked off the field feeling much closer to the NCAA playoffs than they had since the Yale game. Both goalies played a good game, with Fred Mayer warding off nine, and Walsh of Coast Guard stopping UB's stronger offense 17 times.

University Football Squad Concludes Winning Season

by Marty Riger

It looks as if winning football is here to stay at the University. The fine showing of the football team this past year is a definite indication that the Purple Knights are not a team to be taken lightly.

Coach DiSpirito and Coach Marcum feel the entire season was a team effort. When one of the boys faltered there was always someone else ready on the bench to fill the gap. The morale of the team was very high and this was also a contribution to the past fine season.

When asked if he would single out a few of the players who contributed the most to the season, Coach "D" mentioned the entire squad, from first team to last team for he feels that a team cannot be successful on Saturday if the entire squad does not work very hard during the week.

He did single out the spirited leadership of Captain Angelo Palumbo. Palumbo is among the candidates for a position on the All New England Team. "Ang" was the one who would pick the team up when they were down and who was turned to when one of the squad had any problems.

The future looks very bright, indeed, with boys such as Mike Oshan, Norm Pederson, Walt Czekaj, Rich Conetta, Rudy Pasterczyk, Bob Lesko, John Aires, Harry Schlib, Jim Smith, Dave Fleschner, Pete DeGregorio, John Moran and Larry Pasquale returning for at least another season and most of these boys will be around for another two seasons. The above mentioned are only a small minority of the team returning.

Playing their last game last week, were Palumbo, Rudy Valentine, Roy Bruno, Bob Darua, Dave Thiel, Vito Rallo, Tom Shea and John Hutchinson, who incidentally finished up the season being among the top three punters in the East, which includes big and small college football.

Coach DiSpirito did single out one player who he felt was the unsung hero of the team. He is John Moran. Moran is a Junior End and also will be returning next year. Moran did a fine job all year and did it so well that it was taken for granted the remainder of the season. Fans never notice the boy who does his job well all the time. When there was a clutch tackle to be made it was usually Moran. When a good block was thrown on an end run, it was usually Moran's block which shook one of the halfbacks loose. He just did his job so well that people didn't notice it.

To reiterate, it looks as if winning football has arrived at UB. Keep up your enthusiasm, students, and show all of the athletic teams that you appreciate them. Remember, these athletes, no matter what their sport is, must also keep their grades as high as any other student during the season, and put in over 20 hours a week practice, not including games.

The only way you can show these athletes that you appreciate them is show up for the games and don't just bring yourself, bring your vocal cords along too. Let's hear all of you!!!
